KAISER PERMANENTE

retaliates against its mental health clinicians for their patient advocacy

1,500 Kaiser mental health clinicians — members of the National Union of Healthcare Workers — have been denied wages and benefits given to Kaiser's 100,000 other unionized employees.

Why?

These workers dared to defend their patients
by blowing the whistle on Kaiser's substandard mental health care services.

Kaiser has punished these clinicians for demanding that Kaiser stop breaking the law
by delaying and denying timely, appropriate mental health care to its patients.

The lesson Kaiser is teaching all its employees:
If you advocate for patients,
you will suffer the consequences.
