

COVID AND OUR KIDS

Healthcare workers at Children's Hospital Oakland lead the fight for East Bay families

Frontline caregivers and professionals at Children's Hospital Oakland are sounding the alarm as UCSF management continues to funnel resources to San Francisco, sending patients and families across the Bay for services that were once delivered in Oakland.

The pandemic is not over. As more and more children get sick with the Delta variant, how does the hospital reward the dedicated workers at the heart of Children's Hospital Oakland? By closing off avenues to career advancement and threatening their job security.

But these workers are not alone in their struggle for the resources needed to take care of East Bay families. Come to this Community Town Hall to hear how workers who care for our kids here in the East Bay are fighting back — and how we can join them to support our community!

Come hear more about:

- Children's Hospital Oakland workers' struggle to Keep Care in Oakland and win equity and job security
- The struggles of other community groups and unions that support East Bay families
- How we can come together and fight for the resources we need!
