

Tenet is making billions in profits. So why are we shortstaffed?

We risked our lives during the pandemic. We sacrificed, worked long hours, and compromised our health to care for our patients and our community. Tenet called us heroes. But they don't treat us like heroes.

Fountain Valley Hospital is chronically short staffed. We are performing tasks beyond our duties, covering shifts without support, and doing the work of multiple people. Yet, hiring is at a standstill. Positions remain unfilled because workers are paid more at other hospitals and have more support.

With $1.5 billion in profit off the labor of its frontline workers, Tenet has plenty of money to pay decent wages to attract and retain the dedicated caregivers our community deserves. Tenet Healthcare CEO Saum Sutaria made $21.14 million in total compensation in 2021, an increase of 146% from 2020 at $8.58M.

We are fighting back hospital wide: pushing for safe staffing, fair pay and improved working conditions. Because we deserve better and so do our patients.
