Course Content and Instructional Method: Our healthcare system is broken. We believe that healthcare is a public good and a fundamental human right. Race, ethnicity, disability status, immigration status, or income level should never determine your access to care or health outcomes. Healthcare workers have taken action to transform their workplaces and the healthcare system as a whole in order to increase the number of people who receive proper health treatment. This course will take a look at the pitfalls of our current healthcare system and teach participants what they can do to improve access to health care for all. Instructional Methods: Lecture, Demonstration, Large Group Question and Answer, Small Group Discussion Breakout

Instructors:

John Avalos, MSW is an experienced community development policymaker, labor and community organizer and a coalition builder. He has served on the San Francisco Board of Supervisors and is currently a political director at the National Union of healthcare workers.

Astrid Campos, MA is an organizer with more than 13 years of experience developing and implementing successful statewide advocacy, legislative, electoral and issue-based campaigns.

Course Objectives:

- Describe how the economic structure of the healthcare industry impacts patient care in the U.S.
- Identify three changes to the healthcare industry that would improve patient outcomes.
- Help enact health care policies that will improve patient outcomes.

Course Schedule:
